Get Ready to Get Ready.

The bride's beauty prep timeline, from six months out to "I do."

SHARED WITH YOU BY YOUR WEDDING TEAM

HI, BRIDE!

Your whole wedding team wants the same thing.

Your photographer, your planner, your makeup artist, even your venue coordinator: we all want you on time, relaxed, and looking like the best version of yourself in every single photo.

Here's the secret nobody tells you. Most of that gets decided long before the wedding morning. Skin needs time. Tans need a test run. Timelines need math.

So I put it all in one place. Follow this countdown, and your photographer gets gorgeous skin to shoot, your planner gets a bride who's dressed on time, and you get to actually enjoy getting ready.

How to use this

Screenshot the countdown and set a few phone reminders. Then send a copy to your mom and your maid of honor. They're on touch-up duty.

THE COUNTDOWN, PART ONE

Months out: set it up.

6+ MONTHS OUT

- [ ] Book your makeup artist. The good ones book up fast, and Saturdays go first.
- [ ] Pick a skincare routine and stick with it. Consistent beats fancy. Cleanse, moisturize and wear SPF every single day.
- [ ] Have a skin concern? See a dermatologist now, not a month before. Most treatments need time to work.

3 MONTHS OUT

- [ ] Water and sleep. Your skin notices before anyone else does.
- [ ] Hands off. Every bump you pick now can still be a mark in your photos.
- [ ] Thinking about injectables or a new treatment? Talk to your provider now, so there's plenty of time for everything to settle before the big day.
- [ ] Book your trial spray tan and bridal tan. Don't have a spray tan artist yet? We'd love to help at Sprayd Airbrush Tanning.

6–8 WEEKS OUT

- [ ] Makeup trial. Bring inspo photos and a picture of your dress, and wear a top with a similar neckline. Snap photos of the look in daylight and with flash.
- [ ] Freeze your skincare. No new products, peels or "my friend swears by this" serums from here on. New products can mean breakouts right when you don't want them.
- [ ] Teeth whitening? Start now so any sensitivity is long gone.

THE COUNTDOWN, PART TWO

Weeks out: dial it in.

2–3 WEEKS OUT

- [ ] Trial spray tan. If you have the time, give it three weeks. Wear it around, see how you like the color, and ask for a little more or a little less.
- [ ] Last facial. Keep it gentle: no peels, no extractions this close to the day.

1 WEEK OUT

- [ ] Brows. Last wax or tint now, so any redness has time to calm down.
- [ ] Lash extensions? Get them a few days before the wedding.
- [ ] Confirm your makeup start time with your makeup artist.

2 DAYS OUT

- [ ] Shave or wax and exfoliate before your tan, never after.
- [ ] Bridal spray tan, two days before the wedding.
- [ ] Lips: a gentle scrub, then balm every night until the wedding.

The night BEFORE

- [ ] Gentle cleanse, your normal moisturizer, nothing new.
- [ ] Hydrate. Then hydrate again. Save the champagne for tomorrow.
- [ ] Clean pillowcase, and actually go to sleep.
- [ ] Pack your touch-up kit (page six) and hand it to your maid of honor.

THE WEDDING MORNING

Show up ready. Stay on time.

Show up like this

- ☐ Clean, moisturized face. No makeup.
- ☐ Skip SPF with zinc or titanium dioxide on your face that morning. It can bounce back white in flash photos.
- ☐ Button-up or zip-up top, so nothing goes over your head after your makeup is done.
- ☐ Eat a real breakfast. Drink water. Then the mimosas.

DO THE MATH

One artist: 30–45 minutes per face.

5 faces, one artist	about 2.5–4 hours
Two artists	3 faces an hour

Bigger bridal party? A second artist is how you get your morning back.

The makeup lineup (a general idea, not a rule)

Bridesmaid → Bride's mom → Bride's sister → Maid of honor → THE BRIDE →

Rest of the party & flower girls → Mother of the groom

The bride goes in the middle. The people in your getting-into-the-dress photos are ready first, you're done with plenty of time to spare, and the rest of the party finishes up after. The mother of the groom usually goes near the end, since she typically isn't needed for photos before the ceremony.

Make your makeup artist's day

FIND THE WINDOW

Natural light lets your artist match your makeup to what the camera sees.

SAVE A TABLE

A small table near an outlet gives the airbrush kit a home.

BE NEXT IN LINE

When it's your turn, show up with a clean, moisturized face and ready to sit.

Let your planner and photographer know your makeup start time. They'll know just where it fits in your day.

HAND THIS TO YOUR MAID OF HONOR

The touch-up kit.

- ☐ Your lipstick or gloss from your wedding look
- ☐ Concealer
- ☐ Setting powder
- ☐ Blotting papers
- ☐ Tissues and Q-tips
- ☐ Lash glue, if you're wearing strip lashes
- ☐ Eye drops
- ☐ Breath mints
